“ Yesterday my husband and I went to watertown to do a residential photography shoot and we happened to stumble across an old house and cemetery. There was something about it that I just needed to go back and photograph it. The little house was so lovely and the cemetery was soo peaceful. So I took some pictures of the little house and the headstones. I didn't realize it until now that today would have been Chesters birthday! I took the pictures yesterday but what a coincidence!. I have added the pictures below. Seems to me that Chester was a really special man. Hope that you enjoy the pictures!
