“ One of my earliest memories of Emanuel was when was still in the Army. Mom was baking him a German chocolate cake and said she would be sending it via air mail. As a small child, I envisioned her standing in the front yard of our house on Sycamore Street with the cake waiting for a passing airplane and she would throw it up into the air for the plane to catch it.

In later years after we moved to Hobbs Avenue, I would go to Emanuel's apartment up the street and read his collection of cowboy comic books. As I got older, I would cut the grass on his house on Maple Street and see his Army uniform hanging in the closet. When I reached adulthood, we would share a cigar or a glass of bourbon with Dad.

Emanuel was there to help me when I wrecked Sandra's car on Hwy 231 and later when I got dizzy during the time of Dad's passing, fell and hit my head on the fireplace. That was the type of man he was. Always with a smile, and quick to lend a hand in times of need. I will greatly miss him.
