“ As far back as I can remember Uncle Robert was the man I most admired. I wanted to be just like him because he was artistic, smart, strong, and sophisticated. Uncle Robert was both a visionary and a radical with a coolness about him that was impressive. I loved being around my favorite uncle. He was uplifting and made me feel like I was important. He tried to instill in me a sense of integrity and self-confidence. He would tell us stories with so much pride about his mother and father, uncles and aunts, brothers and sisters, and cousins. I am sure he slightly embellished some of those stories, but nevertheless he made me feel like I was part of something so much larger, a community, a family, (to put it in his words) a “tribe of love and nurturing.” I cherished the time we had together and tried to absorb everything he wanted to share. I would give anything just to have one more afternoon with him, listening to him tell the same stories I have heard so many times before 😊.

Over the years, I have been lucky enough to have the guidance of several influential mentors. However, I can whole heartedly say that Uncle Robert was and will always be the most significant male role model in my life. I love him and miss him dearly.

Our deepest condolences Aunt Marylin, Aunt Janna, Cousins: Kalanu, Marichelle, and Maricris.---James and Tatiana
