“ One of my most memorable moments of Timond was at or around the age of 7 or 8 I had a conversation with him that blew me away. His vocabulary was so wide and his intellect was so high I felt as though I was talking to a college student. My take away from that conversation with Timond was, "Never judge a book by it's cover."

My other most memorable moment of Timond was when we were in Savannah, GA qualifying for the Jr Olympics. Timond was in a race and passed this kid on the track. Instead of Timond racing for the finish line, he gets in front of the kid, looks him in the face, and starts laughing at him. It was hilarious. I thought Coach Tony was going to have a stroke that day. But for Timond he was a little kid and it wasn't a big deal to him. Like any other kid he just wanted to go play.

RIP Timond
